A first impression

For sale is a well-maintained detached house in a quiet residential area of Oppenheim, offering approximately 249 m² of living space on a plot of approximately 522 m². Built in 2010, this KfW 55-certified house impresses with its high-quality features and energy-efficient technology, including geothermal underfloor heating from the renowned Swedish manufacturer NIBE. The property has a total of 10 rooms, including eight bedrooms and four bathrooms. Some of the living areas feature high-quality, 8 mm thick, double-layered solid oak parquet flooring, creating an elegant and durable interior. A particular advantage is the additional climate control provided by six separate air conditioning units, each with individual temperature control. The layout offers a variety of usage possibilities. The attic is insulated with both floor and rafter insulation. The ground floor features a high-quality kitchen. The separate apartment also includes a modern fitted kitchen, which is included in the purchase price. The self-contained apartment is accessed via a separate entrance. A large terrace provides access to the garden. Energy efficiency is a top priority in this property. Triple glazing ensures excellent thermal insulation. A 7,400 kWp photovoltaic system not only contributes to independence from external energy suppliers but also to reducing ongoing energy costs. A sensor-controlled irrigation system in the garden provides optimal watering. A rainwater cistern fed by the roof and an integrated rain management system further contribute to ecological sustainability. The property is situated in an exceptionally quiet residential area of Oppenheim and offers a high quality of life thanks to the combination of modern technology, high-quality construction, and an ideal location. Direct access to local amenities, schools, the train station, and recreational areas makes this detached house particularly attractive for families, couples, and multi-generational living arrangements that appreciate modern living comfort with all the advantages of a well-connected location. The residential street ensures a peaceful and family-friendly environment. We are happy to provide further information or arrange a viewing appointment.
