All about the location

Palma de Mallorca is considered one of the most fascinating cities in the Mediterranean. The island's capital combines historical elegance with cosmopolitan flair and Mediterranean quality of life. Magnificent buildings such as La Seu Cathedral, charming old town streets with boutiques and galleries and the palm-lined harbor promenade characterize the unmistakable cityscape. Here, culture, history and a modern lifestyle combine to create an extraordinary ambience.

Santa Catalina, one of Palma's liveliest and most sought-after districts, is just a few steps away from the city center. Originally a traditional fishing district, it has developed into a hotspot for lifestyle, gastronomy and culture. Colorful townhouses, trendy cafés, exclusive restaurants and small boutiques give the area an unmistakable charm. The Mercat de Santa Catalina market hall in particular, with its diverse culinary offerings, makes the district a meeting place for locals and international visitors alike. Santa Catalina embodies urban life with Mediterranean ease and is one of the most attractive residential areas in the city.
