All about the location

Génova is a charming, traditional village that is now one of the most sought-after residential areas in the southwest of Mallorca. With around 3,000 inhabitants, it is only around 5 kilometers from the center of Palma and around 15 kilometers from the international airport. Thanks to its elevated position on the slope of the Na Burguesa mountain, the village offers wonderful panoramic views over the bay of Palma, the sea and the surrounding countryside. Despite its proximity to the capital, Génova has retained its authentic character as a Mallorcan village and conveys a special blend of originality and upscale lifestyle.

The history of the village dates back to the Middle Ages, when fishermen and farmers settled here, benefiting from the fertile soil and proximity to the coast. Traditional stone houses, narrow alleyways and small squares still characterize the picturesque village today. Génova is known for its typical restaurants, which have been serving Mallorcan cuisine for generations, as well as for a strong sense of community that unites locals and international residents.

Due to its location above Palma, Génova enjoys an excellent infrastructure in a quiet environment. The beaches of Cala Major, Illetes or Portals Nous as well as several marinas can be reached in just a few minutes. For families, the region offers an ideal location with short distances to renowned international schools such as Queen's College International School or Bellver International College.

Génova and its surroundings also have a lot to offer in terms of sports. There are tennis and fitness centers, golf courses such as the Real Golf de Bendinat and numerous hiking and cycling trails through the Serra de Na Burguesa in the immediate vicinity. The combination of sea views, Mediterranean flair, cultural proximity to the city and natural surroundings makes Génova one of the most attractive places to live in Mallorca - perfect for anyone who appreciates peace and authenticity without having to sacrifice urban comfort.
